ST. MARK'S EPISCOPAL CHURCH

“Opening the doors of Christ’s love:
an inviting, embracing and serving community offering Good News in the midst of a confusing world.”

April 19, 2015

Caring for Creation (From www.episcopalchurch.org)

Give us a reverence for the earth as your own creation, that we may use its resources rightly in the service of others and to your honor and glory.
(Prayers of the People, Form IV, Book of Common Prayer, p. 388)

What does it mean to “care for creation”?

It means that Christians are commissioned to model for all humankind how to love and serve this earth, the part of the creation upon which we dwell.

What is the source of this commission?

The Holy Bible declares our obligation to care for God’s creation.

What specifically does the Bible say about this obligation?

Genesis 1:26-28 states that human beings are created in God’s “image and likeness” and given dominion over all other creatures. “Dominion” does not mean “domination,” but refers to the need for humans to exercise responsibility for the earth as God’s representatives. In Genesis 2, the human beings are given the garden to tend and serve, symbolizing our obligation to care for creation. Human beings do in fact exercise dominion over “this fragile earth, our island home” (Book of Common Prayer, p. 370). God wills that we exercise it in accordance with God’s desires and purposes. God declared the whole of creation to be “very good” (Gen. 1:31): earth and the life that dwells upon it have value in and of themselves. As “the earth is the Lord’s and everything in it” (Ps. 24:1), we human beings are called upon to tend, serve, and protect the earth as a sacred trust for which we shall one day give an accounting.

What does “created in the image and likeness of God” mean in relation to our obligation to care for the creation?

The God who is Love unconditionally loves all of the creation and not merely us who are able to enter into a conscious relationship with God. We may express the divine image and likeness by loving the creation as God loves it, and by exercising stewardship and earth-keeping as an act of love.

Why is this a time in which Christians should be especially concerned with the state of God’s earth?

Thousands of species are dying off as they are being hunted or their habitats degraded or destroyed. The earth’s air, waters, forests and soils are suffering more and more pollution and depletion. Less land for farming is available to feed this huge and growing population, and disease, malnutrition and starvation are ever-present facts for millions of people. Greatly expanding usage of fossil fuels contributes to global warming, with consequences not yet fully understood but possibly severe for the whole earth. The very beauty of the earth is in peril. Furthermore, the vast majority of earth's human population is made up of the poor, those on whom God's heart is especially fixed, as Jesus taught, and they suffer in greater proportions from this "groaning" of creation (Rom. 8:22).

Given these conditions how can we as Christians show our love for the creation and care for it in ways that meet these challenges?

All of us can exercise stewardship by prudently and sensibly using those elements of the creation we need to sustain our own lives and the generations to follow. At the same time, we can work to preserve whenever possible other creatures and their habitats. Specifically, we can care for the land upon which we dwell and grow our foodstuffs, by preserving or restoring the earth's soils, air, and water, and by protecting the creatures that form its ecological communities.

What can we do to preserve other creatures and their habitats?

We can learn about the great diversity of living things and their environments, and urge our neighbors, churches and governments to become better educated about regional, national and global pressures on the environment. With better knowledge we can do a better job of keeping species and their habitats free from harm.

In his pastoral address to Annual Council, the Rt. Rev. Shannon S. Johnston announced a new racial reconciliation initiative for 2015: "We will begin this effort by holding a series of listening sessions in the mid-year around our diocese. These sessions will be the same Indaba style gatherings that were so successfully used here a few years ago to address tensions and divisions regarding the Church's ministry in the quickly evolving matter of human sexuality. Indaba listening sessions involve no debate, no cross-talk, but rather give every person present the opportunity to speak their hearts and minds in a safe, non-reactive environment." The next listening session will take place on Thursday, April 23 at The Falls Church from 7:30 to 9 p.m. The sessions are open to all members of the Diocese. If you have any questions or would like to register, please contact Ashley Cameron at acameron@thediocese.net or 800-DIOCESE x1048.
