In the French Calvinist celebration of infant baptism the minister takes the child in his arms, or her arms, and says, “Little child, for you Jesus Christ came. He struggled. He suffered. For you he endured the darkness of Gethsemane, the agony of Calvary. For you he triumphed over death. And you, little child, know nothing of all this. But thus is confirmed in the word of the Apostle, ‘We love God because God first loved us.’” Baptism, whether it be infant or believer’s baptism, is all about God’s unconditional love being poured out universally for everyone from the pope to the loneliest wino on the planet. Like the king in the fable, God wants not self-glorification, but ours. In the words of a church father, “the glory of God is a human being fully alive.”

And in return for God’s love, God wants ours freely given. Baptism is a symbol of God’s love, not a symbol of God’s power. And baptism promises minimum protection and maximum support.

God doesn’t want us to be safe, polite, subservient and sterile. God wants us to be fearless, joyful and loving. God wants us to be responsible, response-able, able to respond to love symbolized in baptism, remembering always that love, among other things, requires the utmost in clear-sightedness. God wants us to be creative, to repair a broken world, to empower the weak and scorn the powerful, to bring forth justice to the nations as Isaiah saw it and to work for peace as if the whole world depended on it, as indeed it does. Let baptized Christians remember the glory of God is a human being fully alive. “And not unto us, O Lord, not unto us, but unto Thy name be the glory.”

The Rev. William Sloan Coffin, 1998 Pastor of Riverside Church, New York City
